Iraq, historically known as Mesopotamia, is located in the Near East and is bordered by Kuwait, Iran, Turkey, Syria, Jordan and Saudi Arabia. Mesopotamia was the site of a number of flourishing civilizations of antiquity - Sumeria, Assyria, Babylonia, Parthia, Persia and the Biblical cities of Ur, Nineveh and Babylon. Desired because of its favored location, which embraced the fertile alluvial plains of the Tigris and Euphrates Rivers, Mesopotamia - 'land between the rivers'- was conquered by Cyrus the Great of Persia, Alexander of Macedonia and by Arabs who made the legendary city of Baghdad the capital of the ruling caliphate. Suleiman the Magnificent conquered Mesopotamia for Turkey in 1534, and it formed part of the Ottoman Empire until 1623, and from 1638 to 1917

Ireland, the island located in the Atlantic Ocean west of Great Britain, was settled by a race of tall, red-haired Celts from Gaul about 400 BC. They assimilated the native Erainn and Picts and established a Gaelic civilization. After the arrival of St. Patrick in 432 AD, Ireland evolved into a center of Latin learning, which sent missionaries to Europe and possibly North America. In 1154, Pope Adrian IV gave all of Ireland to English King Henry II to administer as a Papal fief. Because of the enactment of anti-Catholic laws and the awarding of vast tracts of Irish land to Protestant absentee landowners, English control did not become reasonably absolute until 1800 when England and Ireland became the "United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland." Religious freedom was restored to the Irish in 1829, but agitation for political autonomy continued until the Irish Free State was established as a Dominion on Dec. 6, 1921 while Northern Ireland remained under the British rule.

GREAT REBELLION

Public dissension had been accumulating through the early part of the 17th century until rebellion broke out in Ireland in October, 1641. During the next 8 years various issues of coins were produced. They fall into 3 basic categories: Issues of the Lords Justices (representing the Crown), Issues of the Catholic Confederacy (representing the people) and Local Issues of the Cities of Refuge.

CIVIL WAR

After leaving the throne of England James II gathered popular support in Ireland. He landed in Ireland in March, 1689 and proceeded to raise an army. Adequate funds were not available to him so a plan was devised whereby base metal coins could be exchanged for silver following the war. Metal for the new coinage came from church bells, cannon (hence gun money) and any other compatible metal.

A unique feature of these coins is that they are dated by month as well as year. England was still on the Julian calendar and the new year began on March 25. Therefore March, 1689 and March, 1690 are the same month and December and January follow each other in 1689.

"Gun Money" comes in 2 issues: The first authorized in June, 1689 and consisting of 6 pence, shillings and 1/2 crowns. The second issue was authorized in April and June of 1690 and the crown denomination was added. The original values were reduced in size and many pieces of the second issue were struck over those of the first issue.

NOTE: Varieties of spelling, punctuation and placement of design elements exist. Not all have been listed.

BOZZOLO

Bozzolo is located a little west of Mantua. Charles V granted the mint right in 1497. Bozzolo was given to the Gonzaga family by the Emperor Rudolph in 1593, and Guilio Cesare was created prince of Bozzolo. Guilio was succeeded by his 13-year-old nephew, Scipione who ruled under the regency of his mother Isabella until 1613. Scipione became duke of Sabbioneta in 1636. The mint was closed at his death in 1670.

RULERS

BRESSANONE

Brixen (see Austrian States)

Bressanone (Brixen in German) is located in northeastern Italy, 24 miles (40 kilometers) north of Bolzano on the route up to the Brenner Pass, which is 27 miles (45 kilometers) further to the north. It is presently the third largest city in the Province of Alto Adige. Bressanone was the center of a bishopric, originally a continuation of the bishopric of Sabiona, founded about 350 AD. The seat of the bishop was transferred to Bressanone in 992. The bishops came increasingly under the power of temporal rulers during the late Middle Ages. When the Reformation made its appearance in the vicinity of the city in the early 16th century, the bishopric gained the protection of the Habsburgs, one of whom became bishop and issued a series of coins for the territory. Several bishops also issued coins for Bressanone during the 18th century. In 1803, the bishopric was secularized and annexed to Austria. The city became a part of Italy following the end of World War I.

CAGLIARI

The ancient city of Calaris, founded by the Phoenicians about 540 BC on the south coast of Sardinia, was devastated by the Muslims during the period of their conquests. In 1323, Jaime II of Aragon (1291-1327) reconquered the island and began a long period of Spanish rule. Cagliari passed to the control of Savoy in 1720.

CASALE

Marquisate and Duchy

Of very ancient origin, the city of Casale, 40 miles (67 kilometers) southwest of Milan, became the capital of Monferrat, a marquisate erected in 967 by Emperor Otto I (936-73). The first ruling dynasty of the Aleramidi died out in 1305 and Casale passed to the Paleologi, which in turn became extinct in the male line in 1533. The marchese was raised to the rank of Prince of the Empire in 1464. Emperor Carlo V (1516-56) assigned the succession of Casale to the Gonzaga Duke of Mantua (which see), who married the daughter of the last Paleologo marchese. Austrian and Spanish forces besieged the French defenders in the city from 1628 to 1630, resulting in several issues of obsidional coinage. When a later Gonzaga ruler was accused of a felony in 1703, Emperor Leopold I (1658-1705) transferred Casale to Savoy, an act which was finalized as a part of the Treaty of Utrecht in 1713.

CASTIGLIONE DELLE STIVIERE

Marquisate and Principality

This large, fortified town in the province of Brescia, just south of the Lago di Garda and about one-third of the way between Brescia and Mantua, came into the hands of the powerful Gonzaga family of Mantua in 1404. A branch of the Gonzagas ruled in Castiglione, first as marchesi, into the early 18th century, at which time coin production ceased. In 1609, the ruling marchese was raised to the rank of prince. Castiglione was taken by the Spanish and eventually became an imperial possession in 1772. The dispossessed princely line became extinct in the early 19th century.

CISTERNA

An ancient feudatory centered on Alessandria, to the southwest of Milan. Emperor Henry III (1039-56) assigned Cisterna to Vescovo d'Asti in 1041. In the 15th century, it passed from the Garretti family to Domenico and Antonio Paletta, who ceded their rights in Cisterna to Antonio della Rovere, the nephew of Pope Sixtus IV (1471-84). Finally, Cisterna was sold in 1665 to Giacomo Dal Pozzo, the Marchese di Voghera (near Pavia). The place already having received the mint right in 1660, Cisterna was erected into a principality by imperial decree in 1670.

COMPIANO

A commune in the province of Parma approximately eight miles N.W. of Emilia ruled by the Landi Family until 1862. The Landi's also held the commune de Bardi and the principality of Borgotaro. During the hundreds of years that the Landi Family ruled, Compiano developed as a progressive center with a public school system and eventually coinage. Granted the mintage right in 1551, the Landi Family did not strike coins until the rule of Frederico Landi, 1590-1630, after which the mint was closed.

RULER
Federico Landi, 1590-1630

CORREGGIO

Countship and Principality

First mentioned in the 10th century, the town of Correggio is located about 8 miles (14 kilometers) northeast of Reggio nell' Emilia and a like distance northwest of Modena. The local lords of the place trace back to a certain Frogerio and his descendants were raised to the rank of count in 1452, reconfirmed by Emperor Carlo V in 1520. The title of Prince of the Empire was bestowed on the count by Emperor Mattia (Mathias) in 1616. However, cordial relations with the imperial court did not last, as the prince abused his right to strike coins. After years of issuing substandard coinage in spite of warnings and investigations, the prince was deposed in 1631 and the principality was sold to Modena in 1635. The last territorial prince died impoverished in 1645 at the age of 70, although the line itself did not become extinct until 1711.

CUNEO

The commune of Cuneo was founded near the end of the 12th century and was acquired by the counts of Savoy in 1382. Located near the mountainous border with France in northwestern Italy, the town was besieged by the French a number of times. Only during the siege of 1641 was obsidional coinage struck, at the order of the Savoyard governor, Count Vivalda.

DESANA

The town of Desana in Piedmont, less than five miles (7.5 kilometers) southwest of Vercelli, was under the control of the bishop of that city from 1003. Teodosio II of Montferrat was proclaimed lord of the town in 1411 and persuaded the town council to cede power to Ludovico (I) Tizzone. Ludovico II received the mint right in 1482 and was raised to the rank of count in 1510. Because the count had sided with Emperor Carlo V, King Francis II of France took the feudal lordship away from the Tizzone family and conferred it upon François de Mareuil in 1515. The latter then ceded the rights over Desana to Pierre de Beraud the next year, who in turn sold half of the countship to Filippo Tornielli. The count then sold Desana to Duke Carlo III of Savoy, who restored it to the Tizzone family in 1529. The widow of the last count sold the countship to Duke Vittorio Amadeo II of Savoy in 1693.

GAZOLDO

Town and Countship

A small town located only 10 miles (17 kilometers) west-northwest of Mantua, Gazoldo came into the possession of the illustrious Ippoliti family of Mantua by the end of the 13th century. They eventually became counts of Gazoldo and had their own coinage struck beginning the late 16th century. Although the Ippoliti continued to rule in Gazoldo well into the 18th century, the last coinage was produced about the mid-17th century.

GENOA

A seaport in Liguria, Genoa was a dominant republic and colonial power in the Middle Ages. In 1798 Napoleon remodeled it into the Ligurian Republic, and in 1805 it was incorporated in the Kingdom of Napoleon. Following a brief restoration of the republic, it was absorbed by the Kingdom of Sardinia in 1815.

RULER

Conrad II, 1554-1637

MINT MARKS

During the occupation by the French forces regular French coins, 1/2, 1, 2, 5, 20 and 40 Francs were struck between 1813 and 1814 with the mint mark C.L.

After Sardinia absorbed Genoa in 1815, regular Sardinian coins were struck until 1860 with a fouled anchor mint mark.

GUASTALLA

Town, Countship and Duchy

Located on the south side of the River Po, some 16 miles (26 kilometers) south-southwest of Mantua, Guastalla was controlled by the Visconti and then the Torelli families during the late Middle Ages. The town and environs were ceded to the Gonzagas of Mantua in 1539, who were then invested as counts by Emperor Carlo V (1519-56). In 1557, the count received the mint right and later was raised to the rank of duke in 1621. At the death of Ferrante III in 1678, the Gonzaga duke of Mantua took possession of Guastalla until it was restored to the branch line of the family in 1692. Upon the death of the last of the line in 1746, Emperor Francesco I transferred Guastalla to the duke of Parma. The duchy was annexed to the Kingdom of Italy during the Napoleonic Era. In 1847, it passed to Modena and became part of modern Italy in 1859.

LOANO

Loana, a county in Liguria on the Tyrrhenian Sea, was acquired by Oberti Doria in 1263, but sold by the family in 1505 to Gian Luigi Fieschi. Thru marriage, however, it came back to Giovanni Andrea Doria, who restored the castle and built walls. The mint privilege had been conferred in 1547.

LUCCA

Luca, Lucensis
Lucca and Piombino

A town in Tuscany and the residence of a marquis, was nominally a fief but managed to maintain a de facto independence until awarded by Napoleon to his sister Elisa in 1805. In 1814 it was occupied by the Neapolitans, from 1817 to 1847 it was a duchy of the queen of Etruria, after which it became a division of Tuscany.

MANTUA

Mantova
Marquisate and Duchy

Originally of Etruscan foundation, Mantua is situated about 22 miles (37 kilometers) south-southwest of Verona and 36 miles (60 kilometers) east of Cremona. The city was famous in antiquity as the birthplace of Virgil and was made part of the kingdom of the Lombards in 601. Charlemagne made Mantua the seat of a countship, which was combined with the office of the local bishop by the later 9th century. Secular counts ruled Mantua again until the hereditary line died out in 1115 and Mantua became a republic. Elected administrators continually fell under imperial influence and the city was contested by the rival factions of Guelfs and Ghibellines. The family of Bonaccolsi controlled affairs in Mantua for about half a century before they were dispossessed by Luigi Gonzaga in 1328. He founded the dynasty that would rule Mantua and its considerable territory until the early 18th century.

At first, the Gonzagas were content with the title of captain, but the head of the family was named Vicar of the Empire in 1365. Mantua was raised to the status of Marquisate in 1432, but in 1530 the marchese was made duke. The city was sacked by imperial forces in 1630 and during the War of the Spanish Succession. The last duke was forced to allow French troops to occupy Mantua in 1703. The French left Italy in 1707 and the emperor declared the action by the duke to have allowed them entrance earlier as a felony. Invoking his right after the death of the last duke in 1708, the emperor claimed the fief reverted to the crown. It remained an imperial possession until Napoleon besieged and captured the city in 1797. The city was besieged again in 1799 by Austrian and Russian forces, who succeeded in retaking it. Mantua was then returned to Austria in 1814. During the general insurrection against Austrian rule in northern Italy in 1848, the army of Sardinia-Piedmont under King Carlo Alberto attempted to besiege Mantua. The Austrian army was led by the very able General Radetzky and successfully resisted the Italians. Coins struck in Mantua during the siege have GM on them, most probably referring to the Guarnigione (garrison) of Mantual. The city eventually became part of united Italy in 1866.

The Gonzagas followed the unusual practice of giving themselves numbers as the first, second, third, etc. marchese, then duke. The numbers are found on most of their coins in the form of Roman numerals and begin over again at 'I' when the marchese became the first duke.

MASEGRA

The castle of Masegra was located in the vicinity of Sondrio, north of Bergamo, in the foothills of the Alps. The place was a fief of the Beccaria, a family of possible Germanic origins. They struck a few small copper coins during the 17th century.

MESSERANO

(Masserano)

(Lordship, Countship, Marquisate, Principality)

The small village of Messerano, situated in Piedmont about 9 miles (15 kilometers) east of Biella, came under the control of the bishop of Vercelli in the 9th century. The bishop in turn sold the lordship of Messerano to the town of Vercelli in 1240, but it eventually passed to the Fieschi family in 1381, who also acquired nearby Crevacuore (which see) in 1394. The Fieschi became counts of Messerano in 1508 and the countship passed by inheritance to the Ferrero dynasty in 1532. The feudal domain was raised by Pope Paolo III to a marquisate in 1547 and Crevacuore was sold to Savoy in 1554. Pope Clement VIII made Messerano a principality in 1598. After the production of an extensive coinage spanning much of the 16th and 17th centuries, the mint of Messerano was closed in 1690. Prince Vittorio Filippo sold the sovereignty of Messerano to Savoy in 1767 and the Ferrero dynasty became extinct in 1833.

MILAN
(Milano)

The principal city in northern Italy and the second largest city of the modern republic, Milan is located in Lombardy, south of the foothills of the Alps. It is of ancient Gaulic tribal foundation, conquered by Rome in 222 BC and named Mediolanum. Sacked by Attila in 452 and destroyed by the Goths in 539, the city belonged to the Kingdom of the Lombards after being rebuilt and later, belonged to the Germanic Empire. Various families ruled the city in the later Middle Ages and it was also a republic for periods in the 13th, 14th and 15th centuries. The Visconti family became Lords of Milan in the early 14th century and the form of government was changed from elective to hereditary, the lord being raised to the rank of duke in 1395. In 1450, Francesco I Sforza inherited the duchy through marriage to the Visconti heiress and the Sforza's began to enhance the power and prestige of Milan. The city became a pawn in the power struggles between France and the Habsburgs, passing to the control of Spain in 1535, then to Austria in 1740. Conquered by France in 1796, Milan formed part of the Cisalpine Republic (see) from 1797, then the Italian Republic in 1802 and of the Kingdom of Italy from 1805 until 1814. In the latter year, Milan was ceded to Austria and became part of Lombardy-Venetia. In 1859, the city and territory was annexed to Sardinia, becoming part of united Italy.

MIRANDOLA

City, Lordship, Principality, Duchy

The city of Mirandola is located in the region of Emilia-Romagna, 18 miles (30 kilometers) north-northeast of Modena and 27 miles (45 kilometers) northwest of Bologna. It was originally a possession of the monastery of Nonantola (near Modena) and passed to Bonifacio, Marchese of Tuscany. The lordship of Mirandola was eventually divided by several local families and then sold to Modena in 1267. The Pico family came to exercise the most influence on the town when Francesco Pico was made imperial vicar in 1311. The fortunes of the family continued to grow from that time as the lord was made count of nearby Concordia in 1432, raised to marchese of Concordia and prince of Mirandola in 1596, then duke in 1617. When Emperor Massimiliano I *1493-1519) formally invested Gianfrancesco II with the title of marchese in 1515, he also granted to him the mint right. The Pico family retained Mirandola as an imperial fief until 1708. During the War of the Spanish Succession, Duke Francesco Maria sided with France. Emperor Carlo VI declared him a traitor to the Empire, stripped him of his titles and sold Mirandola and Concordia to the House of Este in 1710. Francesco Maria died in exile in Spain in 1747.

RULERS - Pico Dynasty
Federico, 1590-1602
Alessandro I, 1602-1637
Alessandro II, 1637-1691
Francesco Maria, 1691-1708 (died 1747)

MODENA

Mutina

The ancient Mutina is a territorial division of Italy fronting on the Adriatic Sea between Venetia and Marches which became Roman in 215-212 B.C. Ravaged by Attila and Lombard attacks, it was rebuilt in the 9th century. Obizzo d'Este became its lord in 1288 and it was constituted a duchy in favor of Borso d'Este in 1452. Modena was included in the Napoleonic complex from 1796 to 1813, after which it was governed by the House of Austria-Este. Modena began coining in the 13th century and ceased in 1796.

NAPLES

(Napoli)

The Kingdom of Naples existed as a political entity for most of the period from the late 12th century to the middle of the 19th century. Throughout almost 700 years of its existence, the kingdom was ruled by dynasties from other countries, with periods of stability punctuated by the vicissitudes of war, famine, pestilence and civil strife. The kingdom took its name from that of the principal city of southern Italy, one of the oldest inhabited urban centers in the world. Founded as a Greek colony in the 9th-8th century BC as Neapolis (New City), Naples became part of the Roman Republic about 300 BC and was a major metropolitan region of the Roman Empire. The city was the capital of a duchy from the mid-6th century until the Normans, who had conquered Sicily earlier in the 12th century, took control and united the Neapolitan territories to their island. The geographical extent of the kingdom covered most of southern Italy and Sicily during periods when the two parts were united.

Naples came under the control of Aragon in the mid-15th century, was briefly taken by France in the early 16th century, and then ruled by the Spanish Habsburgs until 1714, at the end of the War of the Spanish Succession. For a brief time in 1647-48, a Neapolitan Republic was created, under the patronage of Duke Henri of Lorraine, as the result of a revolt against the Spanish viceroys. Austria ruled Naples in the early 18th century until a branch of the Spanish Bourbon dynasty was installed in 1734. During the Napoleonic period, a short-lived Parthenopean Republic was proclaimed in 1799 on the French model. The Bourbon king was briefly restored, only to be defeated by Napoleon himself, who then placed his own brother as monarch in the kingdom. After the defeat of Napolean, the Bourbons were restored once again and Naples was formally united to Sicily in 1816 as the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies. It was annexed by Sardinia-Piedmont in 1860 and became part of united Italy in 1861.

Coinage produced solely in Sicily for that island are listed under that name.

NOVELLARA

The small town and surrounding area of Novellara, 20 miles (34 kilometers) south of Mantua and 16 miles (27 kilometers) northwest of Modena, was of ancient origin. It was long ruled by a branch of the Gonzagas of Mantua, from at least the mid-14th century. Giampietro Gonzaga of Novellara was raised to the rank of count by Emperor Massimiliano I (1493-1519) in 1501. Several generations of Giampietro's successors ruled jointly and received the mint right from Emperor Carlo V (1519-56), reconfirmed by Emperor Ferdinando I (1556-64) in 1559. The counts issued anonymous coins until 1650, when Alfonso II began striking coins in his own name. The line of counts died out in 1728 and Novellara passed to the Este family of Modena in 1737.

PAPAL STATES

During many centuries prior to the formation of the unified Kingdom of Italy, when Italy was divided into numerous independent papal and ducal states, the Popes held temporal sovereignty over an area in central Italy comprising some 17,000 sq. mi. (44,030 sq. km.) including the city of Rome. At the time of the general unification of Italy under the Kingdom of Sardinia, 1861, the papal dominions beyond Rome were acquired by that kingdom diminishing the Pope's sovereignty to Rome and its environs. In 1870, while France's opposition to papal dispossession was neutralized by its war with Prussia, the Italian army seized weakly defended Rome and made it the capital of Italy, thereby abrogating the last vestige of papal temporal power. In 1871, the Italian Parliament enacted the Law of Guarantees, which guaranteed a special status for the Vatican area, and spiritual freedom and a generous income for the Pope. Pope Pius IX and his successors adamantly refused to acknowledge the validity of these laws and voluntarily "imprisoned" themselves in the Vatican. The impasse between State and Church lasted until the signing of the Lateran Treaty, Feb. 11, 1929, by which Italy recognized the sovereignty and independence of the new Vatican City state.

PAPAL CITY STATES

The 21 Papal City States spanned the Papal states from one end to the other. Most of the cities had been the holy see for hundreds of years. Many of them housed religious architecture and relics that were a veritable history of the church. Many had strong local families th at helped administrate the city and occasionally opposed the Papal authority. Most of these cities stayed in the Papal states until 1860 when Papal territories began to crumble due to the move for unification of all Italy.

PAPAL STATES-AVIGNON

A commercial and manufacturing city located in southeastern France, near the confluence of the Rhone and Durance rivers. Leading industries are chemicals, leather products and soap. It is the sight of an ancient cathedral and papal palace.

Founded as Phocaean colony; later conquered by the Romans, Goths, Burgundians, Ostrogoths, and finally the Franks. Part of kingdom of Arles it became a republic in 1135-46. Later as part of Venaissin it was sold by Joanna I of Naples to Pope Clement VI 1348. It became the seat of the papacy from 1309-77 and of the Avignonese popes during Western Schism from 1378-1417; remaining in the possession of the popes until finally being annexed to France in 1791.

PAPAL STATES-BOLOGNA

(Bolonia)

A city in Emilia, began as an independent commune, and after serving under various masters became a papal possession in 1506. Except for the Napoleonic period (1797-1815) and the revolutions of 1821 and 1831, it remained a papal state until 1860.

PIACENZA

Placentia

The city of Piacenza located in northern Italy some 35 miles (60 kilometers) southeast of Milan and about halfway between the latter and Parma, is the present0day capital of the province of the same name. The site of Piacenza was a former Etruscan town at which the Romans founded, along with Cremona, a colony in May 218 BC. The Latin name of the place is Placentia, meaning "pleasant abode." The city faced many hardships over the centuries of Roman rule, the period of late antiquity and the early Middle Ages. During the High Middle Ages, Piacenza became an important center on the trade routes of northern Italy. From 1126, the city was a free commune and an important member of the Lombard League. Several powerful families, the Scotti and Pallaricini among them, contended for power during the late 13th and early 14th centuries until the capture of the city by by the Visconti of Milan in 1313. They held the city until 1447, when it became a possession of the Sforza dukes until 1499. From then until 1512, Piacenza was ruled by France, then briefly as part of the Papal States under Leo X (1513-21). In 1545, Piacenza and its territory formed part of the new duchy of Parma and Piacenza, ruled by the Farnese family. When the capital of the duchy was transferred to Parma in the late 16th century, Piacenza underwent a long period of decline and devastation. It passed to Parma in 1731, to the Habsburgs in 1735, briefly to Sardinia-Piedmont in 1744-45, then again to Parma under the Borbone dynasty to 1848. When Napoleon conquered much of Italy, Piacenza was annexed to his empire in 1802. By a plebiscite held in 1848, Piacenza voted overwhelmingly to join Sardinia-Piedmont and was henceforth known as the "First-born of the Unification of Italy." Note that some issues in the name of Alessandro were struck for years after his death in 1592.

PIOMBINO

Piombino, a seaport near Leghorn in Tuscany opposite Elba, was variously owned and occupied but under general Pisan jurisdiction. A mint was opened in 1509. When Pisa was ceded to the Visconti, the Appiani family kept Piombino and Elba, and it was made an independent princedom in 1594 by Rudolph II. It passed to the Ludovici family, and finally thru marriage to the Boncompagni family. Its last coinage occurred in the Ludovici period by a father and son.

SABBIONETA

The village of Sabbioneta was founded in ancient times and was ceded by the Venetians to Duke Gianfrancesco II Gonzaga of Mantua in 1426. His grandson, Gianfrancesco the Younger, established a cadet line of the Gonzagas in Sabbioneta and died in 1496. The ruling captain in 1565 was raised to the rank of marchese, then to prince in 1574 and finally to duke in 1577. The line of Gonzagas died out in 1637, but the titles were inherited through marriage to a Spaniard, Ramiro de Guzmán. His son died without heirs and the coinage came to an end. In 1748, Sabbioneta was acquired by the Duke of Parma.

SAVOY

(Savoia)

The territory of Savoy encompassed the northwestern corner of Italy and parts of southeastern France, although the extent of its borders fluctuated over the centuries. Savoy was part of the Kingdom of Arles until 1032, when a son of a count of Bellay gained a measure of independence with the title Count of Aosta-Maurienne. His son, Oddone (1056-60), is recognized as the first ruler of the House of Savoy, but it was not until 1125 that the title became Count of the Empire. During the next few centuries, Savoy expanded to include most of the territory south of Lake Geneva (now in Switzerland) and gained Piedmont, with its capital of Torino (Turin). The count was raised to the rank of Prince of the Empire in 1310 and became Duke of Savoy in 1416.

Savoy was almost constantly caught up in conflicts between the various powers of Europe - the Empire, France and Spain. During 1533 to 1536, Savoy lost consecutively Vaud, Geneva, Valais, Chablais and Gex, then suffered French occupation until 1559. Montferrat was partly acquired in 1631, with the rest following in 1708. The Countship of Desana (see) also became part of the duchy in 1676. During the war year of 1713, Savoy conquered a number of fortresses along the French frontier and was given Sicily in reward. That island was exchanged with Austria for Sardinia in 1720 and all the holdings of the House of Savoy became the Kingdom of Sardinia (see), also called Sardinia-Piedmont.

SICILY

Sicily lies off the southwestern tip of mainland Italy and is the largest island in the Mediterranean Sea. It has been inhabited for millennia, early on by tribal peoples form various places around the Mediterranean in prehistoric times, followed by Elymians from the Aegean Sea and Phoenicians in the early historical period. Greek colonists began settling in Sicily around 750 BC and their most important urban center was Syracuse. Carthage also founded colonies in the western part of the island and clashes between those enclaves and the Greek area led to the series of conflicts known as the Punic Wars. The Roman Republic eventually intervened and upon defeating Carthage, annexed Sicily as the first Roman province outside of mainland Italy. The history of the island followed that of the Roman Republic and subsequent Empire, falling victim to barbarian invasions as the latter disintegrated. As the Byzantine Empire succeeded the Roman, Sicily came under a new threat in the rise of Islam in North Africa. The Muslim conquest of Sicily extended over more than a century as one town or city after another fell during the 9th and 10th centuries. This lasted until the second half of the 11th century, when Normans from northern Europe, who had gained a foothold in southern Italy, eventually conquered the island, culminating in the capture of Palermo in 1072. The Normans established the Kingdom of Sicilly and the island was ruled from that time on by a succession of European dynasties. The Spanish gained control of the island and the southern half of Italy by the 15th century and in the 18th century, a branch of the Bourbon dynasty ruled in both Sicily and Naples (see), usually as separate entities. After the Napoleonic Wars, Sicily and Naples were permanently united in the Kingdom of the Two Sicilies from 1816 until 1860. It was annexed by Sardinia-Piedmont in the latter year and became part of united Italy in 1861.

Coinage produced solely in Naples for use there are listed under that name.

TASSAROLO

Tassarolo is a town of ancient origin which was already a possession of the marchese of Gavi by 1192 and, afterwards, of the Republic of Genoa. It was transferred to Alessandria in 1227, but later subjected to Genoa again and became a possession of the Spinola family in 1454. Tassarolo was erected into a countship by Emperor Ferdinand I in 1560 for the Spinolas' benefit, and received the mint right at that time. The production of coinage in Tassarolo ended in 1688.

TUSCANY

Etruria

An Italian territorial division on the west-central peninsula, belonged to the Medici from 1530 to 1737, when it was given to Francis, duke of Lorraine. In 1800 the French established it as part of the Spanish dominions; from 1807 to 1809 it was a French department. After the fall of Napoleon it reverted to its pre-Napoleonic owner, Ferdinand III.

URBINO

This duchy in central Italy was under Church rule in the Middle Ages. It was ceded to the Montefeltro family under whom it became a center of Renaissance culture. The Della Rovere family inherited Urbino through the feminine line. They extended its domains but moved the capital of the duchy to Pesaro. In 1626 Francesco Maria, the last of the line, abdicated and the duchy with all of its lands fell to Pope Urban VIII and was included in the Papal States.

VENICE

Venezia

The "Queen of the Adriatic," Venice grew from small settlements of refugees fleeing the waves of Germanic and Hun invasions during the 5th and 6th centuries, to become one of the great maritime powers of the Mediterranean in the following centuries. Early in the 8th century, the people living around the lagoons fearing further conquests by the Lombards, elected their first duke, Ursus, who is recognized as being the first Doge of Venice. At the beginning of the 9th century, the seat of the doge was moved to the Rialto and the first ducal palace, as well as the basilica of St. Mark, were constructed. Charlemagne recognized Venice as part of Byzantine territory in Italy and the city's trading rights along the Adriatic coast. When Venice acquired the purported relics of St. Mark from Alexandria in 828, its position as one of the major city-states of the Mediterranean was firmly fixed. As the city's commercial and naval power expanded during the next few centuries, Venice gradually gained control of other coasts and islands along the Adriatic and in the Eastern Mediterranean. Venice became an imperial power as a result of the Fourth Crusade in 1204, when it financed the Latin takeover of Constantinople and, by the late 13th century, was the most prosperous city in all of Europe. When the printing press made its appearance in Germany in the mid-15th century, Venice was quick to adopt the invention and became the printing capital of Europe by 1482.

The wealth of the city's commercial and political families financed the building of magnificent palaces and churches, as well as supported much of the art of the Renaissance in that part of Italy. The city began to decline at the same time, due in part, to the Turkish conquest of the Byzantine Empire and the subsequent loss of some territories in the Eastern Mediterranean. The discovery of the New World and the all-sea route to India destroyed the city's trade monopoly. By the time Napoleon conquered Venice and deposed the last doge in 1797, thus ending eleven centuries of the Republic, the city held only a remnant of its former territory and power, but still gloried in its many exquisite buildings and canals. Napoleon signed over control of Venice to Austria in the same year, but it became a part of his Kingdom of Italy in 1805. After Napoleon's defeat in 1814, Venice was returned to Austria as part of Lombardy-Venetia. Following the Third Italian War of Independence in 1866, Venice became a permanent part of the new Kingdom of Italy.

Almost all Venetian coins were undated until the early 18th century and only from then on, dates are found more commonly on the minor coinage. However, an approximate date can be determined for many issues because of the initials of mintmasters incorporated into the design. Several mintmasters were appointed each year to oversee both the gold and silver coin production and their periods in office were only for one or two years, rarely three. A few mintmasters were appointed to second terms, but only after an interlude of several years to a decade or more. It is very unusual to find the initials of any one mintmaster on both gold and silver coins. The mintmasters for gold did not place their initials on the coinage with any regularity until the 18th century. Separate tables below list all known mintmasters and their initials for both gold and silver issues.

No attempt has been made to record the large variety of die variations among the many denominations, especially for the small minor coins. Stops in legends consist of periods, colons, rosettes, stars and other symbols, but all are represented in the following by periods only. Illustrations included will give an idea of the many types of stops. Until the early 17th century, the upper case letter A appears as a Greek letter lambda, that is, without the horizontal crossbar. It has been rendered as a normal A here.

The mint in Venice struck large quantities of coins for use in the city's many possessions and colonies. Those intended for possession in mainland Italy and widely separated overseas territories are included within the main entries for Venice itself. Coins produced for specific possessions are listed separately following the main Venetian issues. Unless noted, the mint is always understood to be located in the city of Venice itself.

MINTMASTERS' INITIALS
While many of the silver issues of Venice from 1501 to 1797 have mintmasters' initials as part of their design, the same practice was not common on the gold coinage until the 18th century, although a few examples of initials are found on gold coins of the 16th and 17th centuries.

MINTMASTERS' INITIALS FOR GOLD

Initials	Dates	Name
FT	1693	Francesco Trevisan
LP	1673-75	Lorenzo Pisani

MONETARY SYSTEM

6 Bagattini = 1 Bezzo
12 Bagattini = 1 Soldo
20 Soldi = 1 Lira
30 Soldi = 1 Lirazza
124 Soldi = 1 Ducatone = 1 Ducato
140 Soldi = 1 Scudo = 1 Tallero = 1 Zecchino
160 Soldi = 1 Scudo
2 Scudi d'Oro = 1 Doppia

WEIGHTS

Zechhino = 3.45 g
Doppia = 6.90 g

NOTE: Billon or silver coinage dies were often used to strike gold examples. Many gold denominations were struck from the same dies, and therefore, it is most important to check the weight to determine the proper denomination of any specific piece.

DIE VARIETIES

Throughout these many issues, there is great variety in the abbreviations within the legends, with various stars, dots, colons, diamonds, rosettes and other devices being utilized as separators and stops.

VENICE-ARMATA AND MOREA

(Venice Overseas Territories)

Coinage for the Venetian fleet and Morea was issued from the late 17th century until 1714, when the region was recaptured by the Ottoman Turks. Morea is the name by which the Peloponnese peninsula was known in the Middle Ages and early modern era. Having been in Ottoman hands from 1460, Morea was taken by Venice during the Morean War of 1684-1699, only to be lost again several decades later. The coins were struck at the Venice mint.

VENICE-CATTARO

(Venice Overseas Territories)

A city on the coast of Montenegro, called Kotor in modern times, Cattaro was part of Venetian Albania. It was taken by the king of Hungary in 1366, the conquered by Venice in 1377 and destroyed. Cattaro was rebuilt and gained independence from imperial rule in 1420, but Venice resumed control in 1423. The privilege to issue its own coins was renewed by Venice. The city struck a long series of small silver and copper coins until the fall of Venice in 1797, except for two periods of Ottoman Turkish rule in 1538-1571 and 1657-1699. Most of the 16th and 17th century coinage has the initials of the appointed Venetian governor, whose title was Conte Rettore Provveditore. Cattaro passed to Austrian Habsburg rule in 1797, but was given to France by treaty in 1805 as part of Napoleon's Kingdom of Italy. See under Montenegro for 19th century issues.

VENICE-CRETE

(Venice Overseas Territories)

Venice acquired Crete as a colony in 1212 and made the fortress city of Candia their capital and administrative center. The island was conquered by the Ottoman Turks in 1669, bringing an end to Venetian coinage for their colony. For modern issues, see under Crete.

VENICE-DALMATIA AND ALBANIA

(Venice Overseas Territories)

Dalmatia and Albania were territories along the Balkan coast of the Adriatic ruled by Venice from 1420 until 1797. Dalmatia was part of what is now Croatia, northwest of the city-state of Ragusa (modern Dubrovnik). Albania under Venice was located in present-day Montenegro, centered around the Bay of Cattaro (see Cattaro). Venice issued an extensive coinage for these territories during the 17th and 18th centuries.

RULER (Doge of Venice)
Alvise Mocenigo II, 1700-1709

VERCELLI

The town of Vercelli, located about halfway between Torino and Milan, came under the control of the dukes of Savoy in 1427. It was besieged by the Spanish under the command of Don Pedro of Toledo, governor of Milan, in 1616-17. Obsidional coinage was struck in the latter year by order of the Marchese di Caluso, commander of the defending garrison. The Spanish laid siege to the city again in 1638, during the time that Duke Francesco Giacinto of Savoy was under the regency of his mother.

VERGAGNI

Vergagni was a castle in the Valle Borbera, between Roccaforte and Mongiardino and held as a feudal possession of the Spinola family of Genoa from medieval times. In 1676, the feudal barony was raised to a marquisate by Emperor Leopold I. However, when the marchese committed an act of cowardice, Emperor Carlo VI stripped him of his possession of Vergagni and awarded it to Urbano Fieschi.

Japan, founded (so legend holds) in 660 B.C. by a direct descendant of the Sun Goddess, was first brought into contact with the west by a storm-blown Portuguese ship in 1542. European traders and missionaries proceeded to enlarge the contact until the Shogunate, sensing a military threat in the foreign presence, expelled all foreigners and restricted relations with the outside world in the 17th century. After Commodore Perry's U.S. flotilla visited in 1854, Japan rapidly industrialized, abolished the Shogunate and established a parliamentary form of government and by the end of the 19th century achieved the status of a modern economic and military power.

Many of the provinces of Japan issued their own definitive coinage under the Shogunate.

Until 1870

Prior to the Meiji currency reform, there was no fixed exchange rate between the various silver, gold and copper "cash" coins (which previously included Chinese "cash") in circulation. Each coin exchanged on the basis of its own merits and the prevailing market conditions. The size and weight of the copper coins and the weight and fineness of the silver and gold coins varied widely. From time to time the government would declare an official exchange rate, but this was usually ignored. For gold and silver, nominal equivalents were:

16 Shu = 4 Bu = 1 Ryo

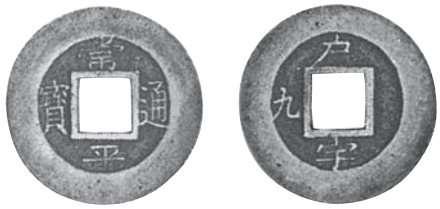
Korea, 'Land of the Morning Calm', occupies a mountainous peninsula in northeast Asia bounded by Manchuria, the Yellow Sea and the Sea of Japan.

According to legend, the first Korean dynasty, that of the House of Tangun, ruled from 2333 B.C. to 1122 B.C. It was followed by the dynasty of Kija, a Chinese scholar, which continued until 193 B.C. and brought a high civilization to Korea. The first recorded period in the history of Korea, the period of the Three Kingdoms, lasted from 57 B.C. to 935 A.D. and achieved the first political unification of the peninsula. The Kingdom of Koryo, from which Korea derived its name, was founded in 935 and continued until 1392, when it was superseded by the Yi Dynasty of King Yi. Sung Kye was to last until the Japanese annexation in 1910.

At the end of the 16th century Korea was invaded and occupied for 7 years by Japan, and from 1627 until the late 19th century it was a semi-independent tributary of China. Japan replaced China as the predominant foreign influence at the end of the Sino-Japanese War (1894-95), only to find her position threatened by Russian influence from 1896 to 1904. The Russian threat was eliminated by the Russo-Japanese War (1904-05) and in 1905 Japan established a direct protectorate over Korea. On Aug. 22,1910, the last Korean ruler signed the treaty that annexed Korea to Japan as a government-generalcy in the Japanese Empire. Japanese suzerainty was maintained until the end of World War II.



From 1633 to 1891 the monetary system of Korea employed cast coins with a square center hole. Fifty-two agencies were authorized to procure these coins from a lesser number of coin foundries. They exist in thousands of varieties. Seed, or mother coins, were used to make the impressions in the molds in which the regular cash coins were cast. Czarist-Russian Korea experimented with Korean coins when Alexiev of Russia, Korea's Financial Advisor, founded the First Asian Branch of the Russo-Korean Bank on March 1, 1898, and authorized the issuing of a set of new Korean coins with a crowned Russian-style quasi-eagle. British-Japanese opposition and the Russo-Japanese War operated to end the Russian coinage experiment in 1904.

SEED COINS

Seed coins are specially prepared examples, perfectly round, with sharp characters, used in the preparation of clay or sand molds. Seed types for value 2 and 5 Mun are not included as they are very scarce and seldom are encountered in today's market.

The Socialist People's Libyan Arab Jamahariya, located on the north-central coast of Africa between Tunisia and Egypt, has an area of 679,358 sq. mi. (1,759,540 sq. km.) and a population of 3.9 million. Capital: Tripoli. Crude oil, which accounts for 90 per cent of the export earnings, is the mainstay of the economy.

Libya has been subjected to foreign rule throughout most of its history, various parts of it having been ruled by the Phoenicians, Carthaginians, Vandals, Byzantines, Greeks, Romans, Egyptians, and in the following centuries the Arabs' language, culture and religion were adopted by the indigenous population. Libya was conquered by the Ottoman Turks in 1553, and remained under Turkish domination, becoming a Turkish vilayet in 1835, until it was conquered by Italy and made into a colony in 1911. The name 'Libya', the ancient Greek name for North Africa exclusive of Egypt, was given to the colony by Italy in1934

TRIPOLI

Tripoli (formerly Ottoman Empire Area of antique Tripolitania, 700-146 B.C.), the capital city and chief port of the Libyan Arab Jamahiriya, is situated on the North African coast on a promontory stretching out into the Mediterranean Sea. It was probably founded by Phoenicians from Sicily, but was under Roman control from 146 B.C. until 450 A.D. Invasion by Vandals and conquest by the Byzantines preceded the Arab invasions of the 11th century which, by destroying the commercial centers of Sabratha and Leptis, greatly enhanced the importance of Tripoli, an importance maintained through periods of Norman and Spanish control. Tripoli fell to the Turks, who made it the capital of the vilayet of Tripoli in 1551 and remained in their hands until 1911, when it was occupied by the Italians who made it the capital of the Italian province of Tripolitania. British forces entered the city on Jan. 23, 1943, and administered it until establishment of the independent Kingdom of Libya on Dec. 24, 1951.

MINT NAMES

طرابلس

Tarabalus

طرابلس غرب

Tarabalus Gharb = (Tripoli West)

The appellation west serving to distinguish it from Tripoli in Lebanon, which had been an Ottoman Mint in the 16th century. On some of the copper coins, Gharb is omitted; several types come both with and without Gharb. The mint closed between the 28th and 29th year of the reign of Mahmud II.

MONETARY SYSTEM

The monetary system of Tripoli was confused and is poorly understood. Theoretically, 40 Para were equal to one Piastre, but due to the debasement of the silver coinage, later issues are virtually pure copper, though the percentage of alloy varies radically even within a given year. The 10 Para and 20 Para pieces were a little heavier than the copper Paras, with which they could easily be confounded, except that the copper Paras were generally thicker, and bear simpler inscriptions. It is not known how many of the coppers were tariffed to the debased Piastre and its fractions. Some authorities consider the copper pieces to be Beshliks (5 Para coins).

The gold coinage came in two denominations, the Zeri Mahbub (2.4-2.5 g), and the Sultani Altin (3.3-3.4 g). The ratio of the billon Piastres to the gold coins fluctuated from day to day.

Situated along the Meuse, Ourthe, and Sambre rivers, Liege was a bishopric which geographically completely divided the Austro-Spanish Netherlands.

Traditionally founded in the 7th Century by St. Lambert, Liege became a bishopric in 721 and by1000, under Bishop Notga, thrived as an intellectual hub of the west and center for Mosan art. Internal struggles between citizens' guilds and prince-bishops did not weaken Liege to self-destruction. She resisted two sacks by Charles the Bold during 15th Century Burgundian domination of the Netherlands and completely rebuilt the city upon his death in 1477.

Liege was bombarded by the French in 1691, and during the War of Spanish Succession was taken by the English in 1702. After the death of Johann Theodor (Bishop, 1744-1763) there were no coin issues of the bishops. The only coin issues were the Sede Vacante issues of 1763, 1771, 1784 and 1792.

Ultimately the rule of the nobles ended in 1789 by a bloodless revolution which was followed by her annexation to France in 1795 and assignment with the rest of Belgium to the Netherlands in 1815.

Since Belgium's independence in 1830, Liege is again recognized as a major river port, rail center and cosmopolitan hub for art, education and industry.

Lithuania emerged as a grand duchy in the 14th century. In the 15th century it was a major power of central Europe, stretching from the Baltic to the Black Sea. It was joined with Poland in 1569, but lost Smolensk, Chernigovsk, and the left bank of the river Dnepr Ukraina in 1667. Following the third partition of Poland by Austria, Prussia and Russia, 1795, Lithuania came under Russian domination and did not regain its independence until shortly before the end of World War I when it declared itself a sovereign republic on Feb. 16, 1918. In fall of 1920, Poland captured Vilna (Vilnius). The republic was occupied by Soviet troops and annexed to the U.S.S.R. in 1940. Following the German occupation of 1941-44, it was retaken by Russia and reestablished as a member republic of the Soviet Union. Western countries, including the United States, did not recognize Lithuania's incorporation into the Soviet Union.

Lithuania declared its independence March 11, 1990 and it was recognized by the United States on Sept. 2,1991, followed by the Soviet government in Moscow on Sept. 6. They were seated in the UN General Assembly on Sept. 17, 1991.

LIVONIA

A former province of Russia, now partly in Latvia and partly in southern Estonia.

The division of Livonia left the northern part governed by Russia while the southern part fell under the dominion of Poland. In 1621 it was the theatre of a war between Sweden and Poland. Being conquered by Sweden, Livonia enjoyed 25 years of milder rule.

RULERS
Polish, until 1628

RIGA

Polish Occupation

Founded in 1158, it became a bishopric in 1198 and joined the Hanseatic League in 1282. It came under Polish rule in 1581, was occupied by Sweden in 1621 and remained a Swedish possession until 1710. Ceded to Russia after the battle of Poltava, it was a part of the Treaty of Nystad in 172l. Riga is an important seaport and capital of modern Latvia.

MALAY PENINSULA

JOHORE

Johore (Johor) is a state with numerous small islands located between the South China Sea and the Strait of Malacca, with the capital of Johor Baharu. Ala'uddin, son of Sultan Mahmud, who fled Malacca after the Portuguese conquest of 1511, declared himself the first Sultan of Johore. Johore later was captured by Acheh, Sumatra, in 1564 and became its vassel state until the collapse of the Acheh Empire in 1641. In 1717, Raja Kechil of Siak, captured Johore, but was later defeated by Bugis forces in 1722. The Dutch defeated the Bugis forces in 1784 and subjected Johore to their control. Johore was later split by Dutch and English influence with the Anglo-Dutch Treaty of 1824. Johore came under British protection as one of the unfederated Malay States by the Anglo-Johore Treaty of 1885. By the end of January 1942 until 1945, Japanese forces occupied Johore. In April 1946, Johore joined the short-lived Malayan Union. In 1948 Johore became part of the Federation of Malaya, attained independence in 1957, and in 1963 became one of the component States of Malaysia.

The Republic of Maldives, an archipelago of 2,000 coral islets in the northern Indian Ocean 417 miles (671 km.) west of Ceylon, has an area of 116 sq. mi. (298 sq. km.).

The Maldive Islands were visited by Arab traders and converted to Islam in 1153. After being harassed in the16th and 17th centuries by Mopla pirates of the Malabar coast and Portuguese raiders, the Maldivians voluntarily placed themselves under the suzerainty of Ceylon. In 1887 the islands became an internally self-governing British protectorate and a nominal dependency of Ceylon. Traditionally a sultanate, the Maldives became a republic in 1953 but restored the sultanate in 1954. The Sultanate of the Maldive Islands attained complete internal and external autonomy on July 26, 1965, and on Nov. 11,1968, again became a republic.

NOTE: The metrology of the early coinage is problematical. There seem to have been three denominations: a double Larin of 8-10 g, a Larin of approximately 4.8 g, and a half Larin that varied from 1.1 to 2.4 g, known as the Bodu Larin, Larin and Kuda Larin, respectively. In some years probably when copper was cheap (AH1276 & 1294),the Kuda (1/2) Larin is found with weights as high as 3.5 g. During the rule of Muhammad Imad Al-Din II Al-Muzaffar Bin Muhammad (1704-1721AD) additional denominations in the form of the 1/4, 1/8 and 1/16 Larin (1.17 g, 0.55 g and 0.29 g) were introduced on an experimental basis. This experiment was not followed by later rulers with the exception of Muhammad Imad Al-Din IV (1835-1882AD) who struck some light weight coins of about 1.1 g which can be considered 1/4 Larins.

The Order of Malta, modern successor to the Sovereign Military Hospitaller Order of St. John of Jerusalem (the crusading Knights Hospitallers), derives its sovereignty from grants of extraterritoriality by Italy (1928) and the Vatican City (1953), and from its supranational character as a religious military order owing suzerainty to the Holy See. Its territory is confined to Palazzo Malta on Via Condotti, Villa Malta and the crest of the Aventine Hill, all in the city of Rome. The Order maintains diplomatic relations with about 35 governments, including Italy, Spain, Austria, State of Malta, Portugal, Brazil, Guatemala, Panama, Peru, Iran, Lebanon, Philippines, Liberia, Ethiopia, etc.

The Knights Hospitallers were founded in 1099 just before the crusaders' capture of Jerusalem. Father Gerard (died 1120) was the founder and first rector of the Jerusalem hospital. The headquarters of the Order were successively at Jerusalem 1099-1187; Acre 1187-1291;Cyprus 1291-1310; Rhodes 1310-1522; Malta 1530-1798;Trieste 1798-1799; St. Petersburg 1799-1803; Catania1803-1825; Ferrara 1826-1834; Rome 1834-Present.

The symbolic coins issued by the Order since 1961 are intended to continue the last independent coinage of the Order on Malta in 1798. In traditional tari and scudi denominations, they are issued only in proof condition. They have a theoretical fixed exchange value with the Italian lira, but are not used in commerce.

These medallic issues are perhaps the world's last major symbolic coinage, just as their issuer is the world's last sovereign order of knighthood. Proceeds from the sale of this coinage maintain the Order's hospitals, clinics and leprosariums around the world.

COUNTERMARKED COINAGE

For over a century the two and four Tari copper coins struck during the reign of Jean-Paul Lascaris Castellar were countermarked as an expedient against the prevalent forging of these coins both in Malta and Messina.

A total of eight different countermarks were utilized. As many as seven can be found on the 2 Tari and all eight different may be encountered on the 4 Tari.

COUNTERMARKS

I. Imperial eagle in circle.
Initiated May 28, 1646.

II. Head of John the Baptist in oval.
Initiated April 19, 1662.

III. Crowned fleur-de-lis.
Initiated August 27, 1696.

For more information refer to The Coinage of the Knights in Malta by Felice Restelli and Joseph C. Sammut, 1977 by Emmanuel Said Publishers, Valettta, Malta.

NOTE: Coins are properly catalogued by the latest countermark. Obviously certain coins may lack one or more countermarks having been missed during such an extensive countermarking period. Prices for this section are based on common examples, which are likely to show less detail and tend to be cupped. The images shown here are exceptional examples and command premium prices.

Mexico located immediately south of the United States has an area of 759,259 sq. mi. (1,967,183 sq. km).

Mexico was the site of highly advanced Indian civilizations 1,500 years before conquistador Hernando Cortes conquered the wealthy Aztec empire of Montezuma, 1519-21, and founded a Spanish colony which lasted for nearly 300 years. During the Spanish period, Mexico, then called New Spain, stretched from Guatemala to the present states of Wyoming and California, its present northern boundary having been established by the secession of Texas during 1836 and the war of 1846-48 with the United States.

Independence from Spain was declared by Father Miguel Hidalgo on Sept. 16, 1810. (Mexican Independence Day) and was achieved by General Agustin de Iturbide in 1821. Iturbide became emperor in 1822 but was deposed when republic was established a year later. For more than fifty years following the birth of the republic, the political scene of Mexico was characterized by turmoil which saw two emperors (including the unfortunate Maximilian), several dictators and an average of one new government every nine months passing swiftly from obscurity to oblivion. The land, social, economic and labor reforms promulgated by the Reform Constitution of Feb. 5, 1917 established the basis for sustained economic development and participative democracy that have made Mexico one of the most politically stable countries of modern Latin America.

The Principality of Monaco, located on the Mediterranean coast nine miles from Nice, has an area of 0.58 sq. mi. (1.9 sq. km).

Monaco derives its name from Monoikos', the Greek surname for Hercules, the mythological strong man who, according to legend, formed the Monacan headland during one of his twelve labors. Monaco has been ruled by the Grimaldi dynasty since 1297 - Prince Rainier III, the present and 31st monarch of Monaco, is still of that line - except for a period during the French Revolution until Napoleon's downfall when the Principality was annexed to France. Since 1865, Monaco has maintained a customs union with France which guarantees its privileged position as long as the royal line remains intact. Under the new constitution proclaimed on December 17, 1962, the Prince shares his power with an 18-member unicameral National Council.

The Kingdom of Morocco, situated on the North West corner of Africa, has an area of 275,117 sq. mi. (446,550 sq. km.).

Morocco's strategic position at the gateway to Western Europe has been the principal determinant of its eventful history. Phoenicians, Romans, Vandals, Visigoths, Byzantine Greeks and Islamic Arabs successively conquered and occupied the land to control the fertile plains between the rugged Atlas Mountains and the sea and ocean. Modern Morocco is a remnant of an early empire formed by the Arabs at the close of the 7th century which encompassed all of North West Africa and most of the Iberian Peninsula. At the beginning of the 17th century, the power in Morocco were held by the Sa'dian dynasty. The Sa'dians collapsed in the middle of this century and that was time for the emergence of two concurrent political movements: the Dila'ites and the 'Alawite dynasty. At the end of the 17th century, the 'Alawites were the only ones to rule and, from then on, their dynasty still reigns in Morocco. Morocco's strategic position involved this country in the competition of 19th century European powers for political influence in Africa, and resulted in the division of Morocco into French and Spanish spheres of interest which were established as protectorates in 1912. Morocco became independent on March 2, 1956, after France agreed to end its protectorate. Spain signed similar agreements on April 7 of the same year.

EARLY COINAGE

Prior to the introduction of modern machine-struck coinage in Morocco in AH1299 (= 1882AD), a variety of primitive cast bronze or copper coins and crudely hammered silver and gold were in circulation, together with considerable quantities of foreign coins. The cast bronze were produced in several denominations, multiples or division of the basic unit, the fals (plural fulus). The theoretical weight of the dinar issued by the Sa'dians is around 4.5 g and that of the dirham is 1.45 g (it becomes less at the end of the dynasty). The denomination for the gold and the silver coins of the 'Alawite rulers for the period 1601-1700 is respectively the dinar (3.52 g and 23/24 mm diameter) and the muzuna (1.17 g and 20/21 mm diameter or 0.94 g and 18/19 mm diameter). All weights indicated in the following listings for bronze, silver and gold coins are standard weights; actual weights of found coins can differ considerably. Anonymous strikes can be assigned to individual rulers by date, design and weight standard. Prices are for specimens with clearly legible dates (if any) and mint names (if any). Illegible and defectively produced coins are worth much less.

To have more information on Moroccan issues from AH1075-1400/1664-1980AD, refer to Corpus des Monnaies Alawites by Daniel Eustache, Rabat 1984. For professional comments and estimate of rarity for all weights standards, see A Checklist of Islamic Coins by Stephen Album, Santa Rosa 2011. Information on Mazuna-strikes of Fes of AH1320-1323/1902-1205AD can be found in Monedas de Marruecos by Sanchez-Giron Blasco, Ceuta 1980. For details of Moroccan issues from AH1297-1380/1879-1960AD refer to Monnaies et Jetons des Colonies Françaises by Jean Lecompte, Monaco 2000. Excellent drawings on bronze coins of Morocco from AH1184-1321/1770-1903AD can be found in Modern Copper Coins of the Muhammadan States by W. H. Valentine, London 1911 (reprint 1969).

The Kingdom of Nepal, the world's only surviving Hindu kingdom, is a landlocked country occupying the southern slopes of the Himalayas. It has an area of 56,136 sq. mi. (140,800 sq. km.).

Apart from a brief Muslim invasion in the 14th century, Nepal was able to avoid the mainstream of Northern Indian politics, due to its impregnable position in the mountains. It is therefore a unique survivor of the medieval Hindu and Buddhist culture of Northern India which was largely destroyed by the successive waves of Muslim invasions.

Prior to the late 18th century, Nepal, as we know it today, was divided among a number of small states. Unless otherwise stated, the term Nepal applies to the small fertile valley, about 4,500 ft. above sea level, in which the three main cities of Kathmandu, Patan and Bhatgaon are situated.

During the reign of King Yaksha Malla (1428-1482AD), the Nepalese kingdom, with capital at Bhatgaon, was extended northwards into Tibet, and also controlled a considerable area to the south of the hills. After Yaksha Malla's death, the Kingdom was divided among his sons, so four kingdoms were established with capitals at Bhatgaon, Patan, Kathmandu and Banepa, all situated within the small valley, less than 20 miles square. Banepa was quickly absorbed within the territory of Bhatgaon, but the other three kingdoms remained until 1769. The internecine strife between the three kings effectively stopped Nepal from becoming a major military force during this period, although with its fertile land and strategic position, it was by far the wealthiest and most powerful of the Himalayan states.

Apart from agriculture, Nepal owed its prosperity to its position on one of the easiest trade routes between the great monasteries of central Tibet, and India. Nepal made full use of this, and a trading community was set up in Lhasa during the 16th century, and Nepalese coins became the accepted currency medium in Tibet.

The seeds of discord between Nepal and Tibet were sown during the first half of the 18th century, when the Nepalese debased the coinage, and the fate of the Malla kings of Nepal was sealed when Prithvi Narayan Shah, King of the small state of Gorkha, to the west of Kathmandu, was able to gain control of the trans-himalayan trade routes during the years after 1750.

Prithvi Narayan spent several years consolidating his position in hill areas before he finally succeeded in conquering the Kathmandu Valley in 1768, where he established the Shah dynasty, and moved his capital to Kathmandu.

After Prithvi Narayan's death a period of political instability ensued which lasted until the 1840's when the Rana family reduced the monarch to a figurehead and established the post of hereditary Prime Minister. A popular revolution in 1950 toppled the Rana family and reconstituted power in the throne. In 1959 King Mahendra declared Nepal a constitutional monarchy, and in 1962 a new constitution set up a system of panchayat (village council) democracy. In 1990, following political unrest, the king's powers were reduced. The country then adopted a system of parliamentary democracy.

DATING

Nepal Samvat Era (NS)

All coins of the Malla kings of Nepal are dated in the Nepal Samvat era (NS). Year 1 NS began in 881, so to arrive at the AD date add 880 to the NS date. This era was exclusive to Nepal, except for one gold coin of Prana Narayan of Cooch Behar.

Saka Era (SE)

Up until 1888AD all coins of the Gorkha Dynasty were dated in the Saka era (SE). To convert from Saka to AD take Saka date and add 78 to arrive at the AD date. Coins dated with this era have SE before the date in the following listing.

MONETARY SYSTEM

Tanka Series, c.1560-1639AD

The main Nepalese silver coinage began soon after 1560AD with fine silver coins, struck to a tanka standard of about 10.6 g. Although the first coins were purely Hindu in design, the later issues of tankas were copied from Muslim prototypes, and although Hindu elements were included in the design, the bulk of the field was taken up by debased Arabic legends. This may have been to make the coins acceptable amongst a population used to a currency of Muslim tankas.

While some of the tankas were struck in the names of specific kings, most were anonymous, and it is not known which of the kingdoms of the Nepal Valley was responsible for their issue. However, with Kathmandu dominant at this period, (Shiva Simha being king of both Kathmandu and Patan between at least 1609 and 1620AD) it may be assumed that most of them were struck in Kathmandu.

During the early 17th century many of the tankas struck were in very debased silver. This may have been due to the fact that Ram Shah of Gorkha cut the Valley off from the Tibetan trade during part of this period.

Apart from the coin of Mahendra Malla, the tankas fall into two distinct groups, one may be called the 'Ala-ud-din type, which has an inscription copied from the tankas of Ala-ud-din Khilji, the Sultan of Delhi, 1295-1315AD, although the inscription reads clock-wise around the coin, quite unlike the prototype. The second main type may be called the Ghiyas-ud-din type, as it is copied from coins of the Bengal Sultan Ghiyas-ud-din Mahmud Shah III, 1526-1532AD, although the design is inverted.

The minor denominations of this period present a problem, as surviving specimens do not readily indicate what fraction they represent of the tanka. There are many small pieces with weights ranging from about 0.04 g to 0.14 g but varying very little, if at all, in diameter. If different denominations were intended, they would have been impossible to distinguish in circulation, so they have all been included in this listing under the general term "Dam", which should be a 1/128th part of a tanka, or about 0.08 g.

After 1639AD the tanka coins seem to have been withdrawn from circulation, which probably accounts for their rarity.

Mohar Series

In about 1640 the weight standard of the Nepalese coinage was completely changed, and it is probable that all the old tanka coins were withdrawn from circulation.

The new standard coin was the Mohar, weighing about 5.4 g, or rather more than half the old tanka. The Mohar was subdivided in factors of 2, as follows:

2 Mohar (Rupee) = 10.80 g
1 Mohar = 5.40 g
1/2 Mohar = 2.70 g
1/4 Mohar (Suki) = 1.35 g
1/8 Mohar = 0.67 g
1/16 Mohar = 0.34 g
1/32 Mohar = 0.17 g
1/128 Mohar (Dam) = 0.04-0.08 g
1/512 Mohar (Jawa) = 0.01 g

The weights given above correspond to the average weight of actual specimens, rather than the theoretical weight, which has been said to be 86.4 grains, or 5.60 g.

The coinage was almost entirely of silver, with the tiny Jawa being easily the smallest coin in the world. Gold coins were struck on only one or two occasions during the Madras period, from the same dies as the silver coins, but these were probably only used for ceremonial purposes. Gold after 1777AD was struck in greater quantity.

Initially the coinage was of fine silver, in contrast to the tanka coins, which were frequently debased. During the early 18th century, however, the coins became debased, but the fineness was improved after 1753AD. The coinage was again debased in the first half of the 19th century.

Many of the mohars circulated in Tibet as well as in Nepal, and on a number of occasions coins were struck from bullion supplied by the Tibetan authorities. The smaller denominations never circulated in Tibet, but some of the mohars were cut for use as small change in Tibet.

In these listings only major changes in design have been noted. There are numerous minor varieties of ornamentation or spelling.

4 Dam = 1 Paisa
2 Paisa = 1 Dyak, Adhani

NUMERALS

Nepal has used more variations of numerals on their coins than any other nation. The most common are illustrated in the numeral chart in the introduction. The chart below illustrates some variations encompassing the last four centuries.

The Kingdom of the Netherlands, a country of western Europe fronting on the North Sea and bordered by Belgium and Germany, has an area of 15,770 sq. mi. (41,500 sq. km).

After being a part of Charlemagne's empire in the 8th and 9th centuries, the Netherlands came under control of Burgundy and the Austrian Hapsburgs, and finally was subjected to Spanish dominion in the 16th century. Led by William of Orange, the Dutch revolted against Spain in 1568. The seven northern provinces formed the Union of Utrecht and declared their independence in 1581, becoming the Republic of the United Netherlands. In the following century, the Golden Age of Dutch history, the Netherlands became a great sea and colonial power, a patron of the arts and a refuge for the persecuted. The United Dutch Republic ended in 1795 when the French formed the Batavian Republic. Napoleon made his brother Louis, the King of Holland in 1806, however he abdicated in 1810 when Napoleon annexed Holland. The French were expelled in 1813, and all the provinces of Holland and Belgium were merged into the Kingdom of the United Netherlands under William I, in 1814. The Belgians withdrew in 1830 to form their own kingdom, the last substantial change in the configuration of European Netherlands. German forces invaded in 1940 as the royal family fled to England where a government-in-exile was formed. A German High Commissioner, Arthur Seyss-Inquart, was placed in command until 1945 when the arrival of Allied military forces ended the occupation.

RULER
United Netherlands, 1543-1795

The Republic of the United Provinces of the Netherlands was a confederation of states ("provinces") that formerly made part of the Spanish Netherlands. The highest authorities were the Provincial States. They were in fact autonomous concerning the coinage, but made agreements about a uniform legislation within the Staten General (notably in 1603, 1606, 1659, 1693 and 1694). Furthermore there were a number of cities, counties and lordships possessing minting rights within the Holy Roman Empire.

In 1693 the Staten General ordered a number of low alloy schellingen to be valued at 5 1/2 stuivers; all others were countermarked with a “Bundle of Arrows” and remained valued at 6 stuivers.

To avoid further expansion of the circulation of florijnen, in 1693 most provinces countermarked florijnen circulating within their boarders and forbid the circulation of non-countermarked pieces. In November 1693 the Staten General ordered all remaining florijnen to be countermarked with the “Bundle of Arrows” . Note: A number of coins were countermarked on both occasions.

1693

To avoid further expansion of the circulation of florijnen, in 1693 Friesland countermarked the florijnen circulating within their boarders with a "Crowned Shield of Arms of Friesland" (three lions walking left) and forbid circulation of non-countermarked pieces.

GELDERLAND

Ducatus Gelriae

Gelder, a former duchy, was merged with the Hapsburg dominions in the Netherlands until the revolt of the Low Countries resulted in its partition. In 1579 the greater part of Gelder, comprising the quarters of Nijmegen, Arnhem, and Zutphen, became the province of Gelderland in the Dutch Republic.

GELDERLAND - BATENBURG

Free Barony

A small free barony in the duchy of Gelders, Batenburg was established as a branch of the lords of Bronckhorst in the early 14th century. Inherited Anhold (see) in the 15th century and then divided into four lines, the last Batenburg line being founded in the mid-16th century. The male line became extinct in 1641 and Batenburg passed by marriage successively to the counts of Horn, then Bentheim in 1694.

RULERS
Hermann Dietrich, 1573-1602
Maximilian van Bronkhorst, 1602-1641

ARMS
Batenburg – St. Andrew's cross, a pair of scissors with points down in each angle
Bronkhorst – lion rampant to left or right
Stein – 7 lozenges in 2 rows of three each and a single one below
Reference: K = Wilhelm Kraaz, Münzen der deutschen Kipperzeit, Halle, 1924.

GRONINGEN & OMMELAND

The province of Groningen is located in northern Netherlands and is drained by numerous rivers and canals.

The early history of Groningen is chiefly one of conflict between the city and the surrounding districts known as the Ommelanden. The city remained loyal to the Spanish king while the surrounding area supported the revolt against Spain. After 1594 Groningen and Ommelanden were united into one republic but it was not until 1795 that they were merged into one province.

The Groningen Mint was closed in 1692. The following coins were struck at the Harderwyk Mint of Gelderland.

CITY

The city of Groningen began issuing city coinage in the late 14th century. Common coin names in use are listed below with their equivalencies:

Plak = Duit = 1/8 Stuiver

Jager = 2 Stuivers

Flabbe = 4 Stuivers

HOLLAND

Hollandia

Holland, a Dutch maritime province fronting on the North Sea, is the most important region of the Netherlands. It is a leader in maritime activities and in efficient agriculture. During the period of Spanish domination, Holland was the bulwark of the Protestant faith in the Netherlands and the focus of the resistance to Spanish tyranny.

OVERIJSSEL

Overijsel, Transisulania

Overijssel is a province in northeastern Netherlands whose name means beyond the Issel, a tributary of the Rhine. Originally known as the lordship of Oversticht it was a part of the holdings of the bishops of Utrecht. It was sold to Charles V in 1527 and made a part of the Habsburg domain. Three of its cities - Kampen, Deventer and Zwolle were important Hanseatic towns of the medieval period.

STAATS-BRABANT - BREDA

Breda is a town on the Merk River, 14 miles (23 km) west of Tilburg. It received a municipal charter in 1252 when it was a heavily fortified city. The Dutch and Spanish kept taking and retaking the town thru much of the 16th and 17th centuries. Compromise of Breda was signed 1566 by the Dutch and Spanish, retaken by duke of Parma 1581 only to be retaken again by Maurice of Nassau in 1590. The Spanish laid a year-long siege to Breda before the inhabitants surrendered in 1625. The Dutch re-couped their hold in 1637. An amnesty proclamation (Declaration of Breda) was issued in 1660 by exiled Charles II of England. Peace Treaties were concluded in 1667 between Britain, France and the Netherlands.

Breda remained an important city in wars of the French Revolution, 1793-95.

WEST FRIESLAND

West Frisia

West Friesland (West Frisia), also known as North Holland, is located in the northern quarter of the Province of Holland. Operating Mints were located alternately in Hoorn, Medemblik and Enkhuizen. In the city of Enkhuizen a second provincial mint was active from 1673 to 1679 under mintmaster Dirk Bosch.
